

MUCH LOSS OF LIFE

Several Churches in Spain Struck by Lightning.

NOTIOUS ELECTRIC FREAKS

In One Ten Worshipers are Killed and in Another Five—Many Others Badly Hurt.

MADRID, June 13.—Terrible thunderstorms prevailed in various parts of Spain Sunday, and loss of life and injury by lightning is reported. The electricity appeared to pick out the churches as the object on which to show its power, and unfortunately it did so while the services were in progress. At Melias, in the province of Orense, the parish church was crowded with worshippers attending mass when the storm burst on the city. Though the people of thunder were very loud on the faces of lightning extremely vivid, not much attention was paid to the storm at first. Suddenly a most terrific crash of thunder, followed almost immediately by a flash of lightning that was blinding in its intensity, caused the worshippers to spring to their feet in fear. Women shrieked and little children clutched their parents in an agony of terror. For two or three seconds after the flash it was impossible to see anything, the transition from sudden brightness to extreme darkness rendering the people practically blind. The utmost confusion prevailed.

Fifteen Killed.

Finally when order had been restored the congregation were horrified to find that ten of their number had been struck by the lightning and instantly killed, and that twenty-eight others had been seriously injured. When this fact became generally known the people were panic-stricken and rushed from the church into the pelting storm. Many of them, men, women and children, sought refuge in the open spaces in the vicinity of the church, fearing to enter a house, and there they remained drenched to the skin until the storm passed over.

An almost similar case occurred at Mucientes, in the province of Valladolid. The church in that village was also struck by lightning. Five of the worshippers were killed and ten injured.

GEN. BOOTH'S GREAT WORK.

Henry Labouchere Tells of the Success of the Farm Colony.

LONDON, June 13.—The fact that Henry Labouchere recently signed an appeal made by Gen. Booth for funds for the Salvation Army's work occasioned considerable surprise and comment, as he had been formerly understood to regard both as a sham. In an interview just published Labouchere explains his attitude, saying that he has satisfied himself that the money raised by Booth is being rightly expended. He states that he recently visited the "farm colony," near Hadleigh, and found a very interesting state of affairs. An enormous work had been accomplished. A complete village had been built up in thirteen months. The colony possesses 300 acres of land under crops, and 1,500 acres of land is being reclaimed from the sea by the dumping of London refuse. Thirty-seven acres are devoted to fruit trees. There are 600 chickens, 500 cattle and a large number of sheep and pigs. A rabbit warren is a novel and useful part of the stock-raising establishment. The colony also boasts of a saw-mill, a brick yard with a capacity of 30,000 a day, a chair factory with a daily output of 500 chairs and other manufacturing plants. Labouchere found the "unimproved tenth" working hard, and proving themselves deserving of the help Booth, by the aid of the generous public, had extended them. Booth's theory that by giving these poor wretches a little encouragement—a start—they could be redeemed, seems to be substantiated by the results attained. Men are constantly leaving the colony to accept good situations. The moral effect upon the beneficiaries seems like a physical tonic. Labouchere considers Booth's enterprise an honest, faithful and successful one.

FLOODS IN CUBA.

Four Lives Lost, Sugar Destroyed and Yards Wrecked in the Harbor.

HAVANA, June 13.—A dispatch from Matanzas states the Yumuri and San Juan rivers are greatly swollen. The civil guards and troops are aiding as far as possible the people whose houses have been flooded. In several houses the water is 10 feet deep. The warehouses are inundated and thousands of bags of sugar have been lost. Many small vessels in the harbor were wrecked during the storm. A number of bridges, including those at Bullen and San Luis, have been destroyed. The telephone poles are down. Four persons lost their lives in the floods.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.

Work of the Relief Committee in the Hospital City of Tennessee.

On City, Pa., June 13.—The fifty-fourth body was found here Sunday. This completes Old City's dead, all of the missing having now been found or accounted for.

ITUSVILLE, Pa., June 13.—The following is given out officially to the public:

The prompt and generous assistance given to our afflicted citizens in their recent calamity by the people in all parts of the country is most gratefully appreciated by the sufferers and all members of the committee. It is due to the public that we make a statement of our condition as quickly and accurately as possible six days after the calamity. We have our relief committee thoroughly organized and the distribution of food, clothing, bedding and other supplies is progressing with system. Perfect order prevails. Large houses of laborers are employed in reconstructing wreckage from the streets and in clearing up the ruins of houses.

Forty-five bodies have been buried. Several persons are still missing. We do not need clothing, food or other supplies. Our need is for money to repair those who have lost by fire and flood and to repair the enormous destruction of property. The amount of property lost is estimated at $1,000,000. The same has been lost by the poor and laboring people.

Within the bounds covered were more than 100,000 and fifty dwellings as well as many shops, manufacturing and all refineries which have been destroyed. The loss of personal property in the homes of the people was estimated at $1,000,000. The loss of property was estimated at $1,000,000. The same has been lost by the poor and laboring people.

CAN'T TOUCH THE TRUSTS.

Judges Say Congress and the Legislature Must Keep Hands Off.

CINCINNATI, June 13.—Mr. H. L. Greene, of the whisky trust, was before Judge Jackson and Ricks, of the United States circuit court, Saturday to answer for refusing to give bond to appear in Boston to respond to an indictment found against him in that city for violation of the United States anti-trust law. The court claimed, on reading the indictment, that none of the counts constituted a violation of any law of the United States. Mr. Greene was accordingly released from the requirement to give a bond. Upon the return of District Attorney John W. Herron to the city the government will ask for bench warrants to remove all the indicted persons to Boston. This will be resisted if necessary by habeas corpus proceedings. Judge Jackson gave the grounds for his decision, or rather in a general review of the anti-trust law, an opinion that, aside from the nullity of the indictment of Mr. Greene, the application of the law in this case would be to apply an ex post facto law inasmuch as the trust was formed before the law was enacted. The trust seemed, moreover, to him not to be a monopoly, for it did not prevent other similar trusts being formed, and congress had no right to forbid business combinations for mutual profit. The judge held in effect, that neither congress nor the states has any power to regulate trusts.

OFFICES TO BE FILLED.

Blaine's Successor Must Be Named Soon. Other Coveted Prizes.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Appointments from the white house may be looked for in a short time now that the convention excitement is subsiding. The most important, of course, will be the naming of a secretary of state. This must be done within a few weeks, for under the law a vacancy in the cabinet occasioned by resignation or death cannot be filled temporarily by an acting secretary for a period longer than thirty days.

The president also has two coveted prizes in the army and one in the navy to bestow at this time by the appointment of a brigadier general, the governor of the soldiers' home, and the judge advocate general of the navy. The vacancy in the office of comptroller of the currency—a desirable position—will have to be filled.

Whether Postmaster General Wamsmaker will continue in the cabinet in case the republican party meets with success next November is a matter about which he has said a good deal privately. His friends are of the opinion that he does not wish to serve another four years, and March 4 he will stand aside for somebody else. That is regarded as his personal preference at this time, but it is within the range of possibility that he can be induced to remain at the head of the post office department. In the event that Mr. Wamsmaker retires it is thought that Col. Whitfield, the first assistant postmaster general, will receive consideration at the hands of the president in connection with naming Mr. Wamsmaker's successor.

BATTLE WITH BRIGADES.

Mexican Troops Kill Six and Capture Twenty-Two of the Tequila Raiders.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 13.—News has reached here that Col. Guadalupe Gonzalez del Valle and a detachment of Mexican troops, who were sent by President Diaz in pursuit of the bandits who participated in the recent assault on Tequila hacienda, met the desperadoes in the mountains near Orizaba. A fight ensued, which resulted in six of the brigades being killed and twenty-two captured. The captives were marched into Orizaba for trial.

Killed by Electric Car.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 13.—Lena Sugarman, aged 14 years, was run over and instantly killed by an electric car Sunday evening. The car was running at a rapid speed and was crowded with ladies. The motorman jumped from the platform when he had stopped the car and disappeared, but has since been arrested and will be held pending an investigation. The accident was witnessed by the child's parents, who were sitting on a veranda near by.

One Man Killed.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 13.—Trailer No. 4, an open summer car on the Curtis Bay electric railway, jumped the track Sunday afternoon at First street and Patapsco avenue, Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, and, turning over at a considerable angle, threw about twenty passengers out on the ground. Four men were badly hurt. One has since died of his injuries.

Both Were Drowned.

FORT ATKINSON, Wis., June 13.—Sunday some boys were bathing in the river, when a widow's son, named Mansky, aged 19 years, sank out of sight. On coming to the surface one of the other boys, named Packer, aged 17 years, went to his assistance. The Mansky boy grasped him and both were drowned. Their bodies have not been recovered.

Sudden Death of a Banker.

RACINE, Wis., June 13.—Horatio B. Munroe, cashier of the First national bank, died suddenly about 6 o'clock Saturday night at his home on Main street, of heart disease. He left the bank at 6 o'clock and went to his home and proceeded to work in the garden. Shortly after his wife went into the garden and found him on the ground dead.

Damage by Mail.

DONIPHAN, Neb., June 13.—A terrific hailstorm struck this vicinity at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, destroying all fruit and growing crops in its track and breaking every window in town exposed to the fury of the storm. Mail fell as large as hen's eggs and buried up in some places to a depth of 3 feet.

Killed by an Explosion.

ROCK, June 13.—A case of homicide was ignited accidentally by a match in a shop in Paris Sunday. The case exploded, the door and ceiling collapsed and the building caught fire at once on the first and second floors. Four persons were killed and five were injured. The fire was extinguished.

OUR MAN OF STYLE

Details in His Toilet Which Require Attention.

TIP ON FOLDING AN UMBRELLA

It Should Always Look as Neat as a Gloved Hand—How to Buy Your Collars and Cuffs.

Trides light as air might be a fitting caption to what I am going to talk about to-day, but these trifles are the very things that make the man of fashion a type. Many men dress well, but only a few dress in absolutely perfect taste, and they are those who look after trifles. Now few men know how to adjust an umbrella so that it is ever in its first neat shape. How few men waste time to ascertain, not the latest styles in neckwear, but the fashionable manner of tying a bit of neckcloth. How few men know what jewelry is appropriate on occasions, and how many men know just what is inappropriate at any and all times. For instance, here is a bit of advice in folding an umbrella that is worth remembering, for it should always look as neat as your gloved hand. Shake out the cloth until no part of it is confabed between the ribs, but all hangs free. Then place the dome in the palm of the hand with the fingers closed to form a circle. With the right hand, palm down, grasp the tips of the ribs. Turn the umbrella from you with the right hand, at the same time turning the left hand toward you, and with a downward motion, the distance traveled being, say, an inch. Then hold the umbrella firmly with the left hand, while with the right you take a fresh grasp at the same place as before, and thus continue turning until the left hand reaches the right. When the strap is secured the package will be perfectly smooth with every fold neat and snug, and the tips on an orderly circle close to the handle.

No man who pretends to dress well will wear a collar unworn to his shirt. In fact, the loose collar is an article unknown to the wardrobe of the real man of fashion. The style in collars at the beginning of the season which suits you best may be worn to the end.

This leads me naturally to that specimen of the man of fashion who goes to extremes, who claims to establish his dress upon good English authorities, and who follows every pointer that comes from across the ocean. The fact of the matter is that "the smart set of England" is as modest in attire as any well-dressed American. This extremist really originates his own style, and they are downright abominable. If collars are worn moderately high he will wear them ridiculously high. If cuffs are shown a trifle below the sleeve he will exhibit half a yard; and if scarfs show a tendency to masquerade he will swathe his bosom in a silken pillow.

In fact, if any article of apparel shows the least tendency toward a definite effect, that effect is broadened and copied by the man who wants to be singular. The well established rules that govern modern dress are never departed from by the gentleman; that is why the extremist is so easily distinguished. Watch him at an evening affair arrayed in a correctly-cut full-dress suit. The job or watch guard is prominently exhibited. Large studs adorn the shirt, which is generally most elaborately embroidered, and satin scarfs of so-called evening shades are put forth with all the courage of a man who believes he is right from the start. Oddity in dress is never good taste. Sudden changes of color in your suitings, rapid and marked departures from your established mode are always signs of a mind that lays more stress on sensation than upon gentility. If you have on an unobtrusive garment no one makes comment.

In jewelry the less you wear the better. A black silk watch guard is better than a chain. The studs should not be massive. Men's rings are even worn smaller, particularly seal rings. These, if you want to be in style, should be set in plain lustrous circles. The designs are generally taken from the antique, the popular divinity being Ajax, Mercury, Minerva and Psyche. I merely mention this to illustrate how low prevailing style, never laying himself open to the charge of "fashionism." Another pointer for the man of fashion might be on how to buy a hat. Most men go to a leading store, order a No. 7, a No. 7 1/2, a No. 8 1/2, put it on, and apparently it fits. It really does not, for no two heads are shaped alike, and the figures 6 3/4, 7, 7 1/2 are arbitrary. The sensible man will have his hat made to fit his head. He will go to his hatter, have the conformateur put on, and then will have the exact shape of his head down on paper. It looks ugly, but it is the most convincing proof imaginable that a stock hat is not the thing to buy. Perhaps it may interest you to know how thoroughly the conformateur does its work. In principle the machine is very simple. It consists of a low-crowned hat, which is made up of what may be called wires, but which are really thin strips of inlaid wood held together by a spiral spring which is attached to every wire at a central point. This yields to the pressure and allows the circle of wires to arrange themselves to fit every possible irregularity of the head. As the wires yield they of course carry with them the little needles at the top, which take the shape of a small oval figure. A piece of paper is laid upon these needles, a cap lined in the center with cork is pressed down, and a print taken. It is placed on the form, which consists of a number of wooden strips arranged in a circle. These move easily, and being fitted around the conform, are extended to the exact size required. Thumb-screws are applied to hold them together, and the maker now has a solid block representing the shape and size of the customer's head. The hat body, still in a somewhat pliant condition, is forced over the block and kept there until it assumes the required shape.

So you see how well you can be fitted if you only know how to go about it.

THE BETTING DRUNKARD.

He is the Very Worst of a Very Bad Class.

"Most disagreeable man of whom I know," he said as he scowled at the man who was wildly gesticulating while holding a conversation with another man in the club reading room.

"That's saying a good deal," returned the other.

"That it's right."

"Drinks a good deal, I suppose."

"Yes."

"Well, there are all kinds of drunkards. Now, there's the fighting drunkard."

"O, he doesn't want to fight. He's a peaceable man as far as he is concerned."

"The man who gets maudlin is one of the worst of whom I know."

"He's not that kind."

"Argues, I suppose."

"Yes, some."

"O, of course, an argumentative."

"But he's worse than that."

"What in thunder is the matter with him, then?"

"He's a betting drunkard—wants to bet on everything that comes up. Is there any worse?"

"There is not. Let's get into another room before he sits down here."—Chicago Tribune.

Why Japanese Women Look Pleasant.

Perhaps the secret of the sweet expression and habit of civility of the Japanese women can be found in their freedom from small worries. The fashion of dress never varying saves the wear of mind over that subject, and the bareness of the houses and simplicity of diet make housekeeping a mere bagatelle. Everything is exquisitely clean and easily kept so. There is no paint, no drapery, no crowd of little ornaments, no coming into the houses in the foot wear worn in the dusty streets. And then the feeling of living in the rooms that can be turned into balconies and verandas at a moment's notice, of having walls that slide away as freely as do the scenes on the stage, and let in all out of doors, or change the suites of rooms to the shape and size that the whim of the day or the hour requires. The Japanese are learning much from us, some things not to their improvement. We might begin, with profit to ourselves, to learn of them.—Newport News.

Kinder Than Her Kind.

The landlady of the boardinghouse had let him come in to the kitchen table, and she had set before him a piece of beef and a pitcher of water. He was pretty hungry and went for the beef vigorously, but it resisted all his efforts. After wrestling with it in vain he laid down his knife and fork and poured out a glass of water which he proceeded to sip slowly. The lady watched him for several minutes.

"Aren't you hungry?" she said, kindly.

"Yes'm," he replied, meekly.

"Then why don't you eat that beef?"

"You will excuse me, mum," he said, in a helpless tone, "but really I am too weak to do any hard work, and I thought maybe I might get enough nourishment and strength out of this water to tackle the beef when I got rested."

Some landladies would have whacked him with a broom handle, but this one didn't; she gave him a plate of cold hash and a spoon.—Detroit Free Press.

Why the "Red Sea."

Many persons have puzzled their brains wondering why the "Red" sea should be so called. The name was originally applied to it because portions of it are covered with patches from a few yards to some miles square, composed of microscopic vegetable organisms which dye the waters a blood red. When not affected by these organisms the "Red" sea is intensely blue, the shall waters showing some shades of green.

SPRING & COMPANY'S OFFICE.

GRAND RAPIDS, June 12, '92.

There were times when argument for Muslin Underwear ready-made, was needed. Those times have passed. Muslin Underwear now fills a great place in Dry Goods Retailing.

This is a progressive business, but it is only recently that we have realized the possible growth of sales in Muslin Underwear. Early in the season we made a sale, and now we inaugurate another.

Ought such sales to be? Are there any sound reasons why masses—thousands—of garments should be collected and offered at special prices at one time? Or, on the other hand, is it merely an attempt at sensation?

Mere sensations are never attempted here—this is not a sensational business. Sound reasons underlie every trade movement we make, and the excited rush of trade is only a logical result of real causes.

There is no space for detailed argument. The combination of excellence and cheapness that results from the foresight, skill and labor that creates the present Muslin Underwear offerings are well known.

Every detail is an object of care. The patterns by which garments are cut, the Swiss embroideries used in the trimming, the muslin, the sewing, are all carefully scrutinized. Nothing unworthy is offered. It is well to note these facts. Competition will set in and trash will abound. You need to distinguish. Intelligent discrimination is all we ask. Give us that and the Muslin Underwear sales will double.

FOR Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday,

Muslin Underwear shall reign the pronounced favorites among our world of Dry Goods, with prices that speak loud as a crash of thunder, appealing to the intelligence of our people. Follow the story through.
